Peacemaking circles are a form of restorative justice that is rooted in the belief that everyone in the community is valuable. The circle process provides a space and tools for community building and turns conflicts into opportunities for growth and learning.

The Dispute Resolution Center's Intro to Peacemaking Circle Training will provide participants:

- An overview of peacemaking circles
- A demonstration of how to use the circle
- An analysis of the circle components
- Tools to effectively facilitate circles while maintaining an inclusive, judgment free and collaborative space

"The restorative [justice] practice movement seeks to develop good relationships and restore a sense of community in an increasingly disconnect world."

~ B. Costello
